Your humble blog's perennial open-source community is asking for your generosity and all-round help to spread the blessings of a good read in 2013. The first of our little projects for 2013: a comprehensive, searchable web-based comic source, complete with exploration by topic and culture. We've rebuilt the site to modern standards. There's a new layout, streamlined indexing, a whole lot of new material and options, improved search, sortable categories, and a whole lot of other things. We've also added a slew of new comics to the site, and have begun adding new features to let you create your own comics, too. We'd love your feedback and input. Please use the comments and forum, as well as the support and development requests of the code repository, to let us know what you think. You can also help by contributing content. There's a whole bunch of stuff we'd like to add: just let us know what you'd like to see. Why reinvent the wheel? Because we know there are dozens of other comic list sites out there that are complete and comprehensive in their collections. Why not have a fresh start by finding a unique focus on comics, and give it the attention it deserves? Finally, it's Christmas. A few of us like to drink. A lot of us like to cook. So we're taking the traditional approach and having a Potluck. On Monday (Jan. 14), we'll all be pooling our resources to assemble a feast of the best comics we have, as well as our thoughts on this project, of all our sub-projects that we've been working on in and around the comic
